

In March, BAT moved into full swing with a demonstration of the dreaded Skew chisel by David Reed Smith. David uses the skew frequently in his projects, many of which have been featured in the pages of Woodturning Design magazine. David made it look easy, and many of us learned that following the correct techniques really does take some of the bite out of this useful tool.

David explains proper Skew techniques.

Jimmy Clewes visits BAT ==>>>>

